On behalf of the editorial board of Rethinking Marxism: A Journal of Economics, Culture and Society and the conference organizing committee, we welcome you to Rethinking Marxism 2009: New Marxian Times.

This is certainly an interesting conjuncture. The dominance of neoliberal and market-based policies and ideologies has been somewhat shaken recently. Commentators and citizens across the political and economic spectrums acknowledge a wide variety of economic, ecological, and political crises facing the world. After three decades of increasing inequalities, the cultural ascendancy of neoliberal ideologies, and the rise of authoritarian and punitive states, subjects are losing faith not only in market capitalism, but also in both corporatist and governmental interventions. Meanwhile, left analyses of these events have yet to gain much political traction outside of, perhaps, sections of South America. These dynamics represent both a significant crisis for currently constituted capitalism and modes of governance as well as a set of challenges and possibilities for all of us concerned with working towards a non-exploitative and more equitable world. In light of these conditions, the theme of the conference asks us to consider what the possibilities are for Marxism in these new times. What emergent possibilities do these crises create for Marxist and other progressive ideas and visions? How does Marxism, and left-wing thought more generally, need to be rethought to respond to these challenges? It is our hope that the conference can be a site where answers to these questions are formulated and discussed.

Our seventh international conference features formal papers, workshops, performances, art exhibits, film and video screenings, plenary sessions, roundtable discussions, and much more. Together, the plenary and panels exploring Marxism and Nationalism, the roundtable on the Current Economic Crisis, discussions of Artistic Agency and Politics, the series of panels engaging the project of crafting Alternative Economies, other panels focused on the Ecological Crisis, Marxism and Feminism, Gramsci, Marxism and Psychoanalysis, Race, Literature, Food Insecurities, Public Health, Contemporary Social Movements, Marxist insights into conditions throughout the globe, and the relationship between Marxisms and new anarchist movements offer a vision of a project dedicated to exploring the possibilities and challenges of Marxism for understanding and engaging with the crises crisscrossing the contemporary world. We are thrilled with the many hundreds of excellent submissions from myriad academic disciplines and fields of activism we received for New Marxian Times. We trust that you, too, will find much of interest and value, both intellectually and politically, in the conference program.

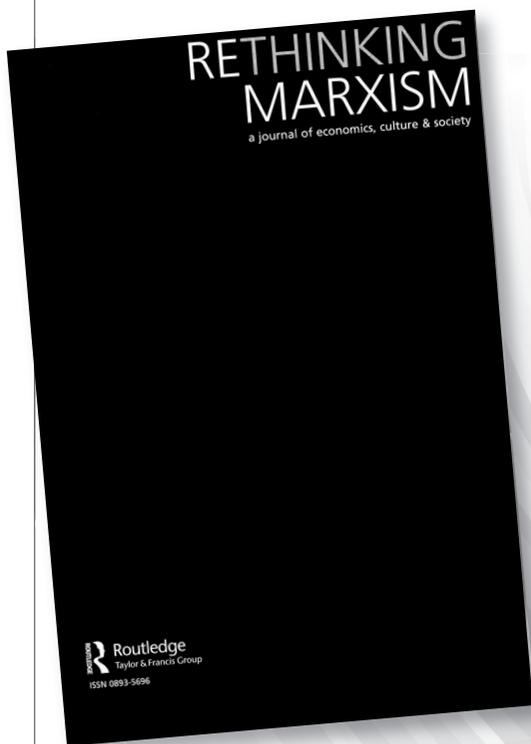

An event such as this would not be possible without the support and help of many people.

The editorial board of Rethinking Marxism wishes to acknowledge and thank Vin Lyon-Callo, Mwangi wa Githinji, Yahya M. Madra, John Roche and the many other people—including Elizabeth Ramey, Jesal Kapadia, Peter Tamas, Julie Graham, Cathy Mulder, Boone Shear, David F. Ruccio, S. Charusheela, Serap Kayatekin, Susan Jahoda, Stephen Healy, and Philip M. Kozel—for the time and effort they have volunteered in pulling together this conference over the past two years. Shelley Gibbons at UMass Conference Services has also been of immense assistance in pulling this event together.

We also want to thank the following organizations for their financial support of our effort: the Graduate School, the College of Natural Sciences, the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, the Office of the Vice Chancellor of Research and Engagement, the Political Economy Research Institute, the Herter Art Gallery, and the Departments of Geosciences and Economics of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, the Graduate School of the University of California Riverside, and the Association for Economic and Social Analysis. Without their assistance, a conference like this would simply not have been possible.

The editorial board of Rethinking Marxism is therefore pleased to welcome you to Rethinking Marxism 2009: New Marxian Times, during which we can celebrate and critically interrogate the continued vitality of Marxian thought and practice in the world today.

Saturday All Day [177] Special Film Screening

"Reclaiming the Future" A Program of Political Experimental Films Co-curated by Sherry Millner and Ernest Larsen

QUEEN MOTHER MOORE SPEECH AT GREENHAVEN PRISON The People's Communication Network 17 min. video U.S.

A videotape of a live cable broadcast on community visiting day inside a federal prison that documents an extraordinary speech by 75 year old African-American civil rights activist Queen Mother Moore, who says such things to the increasingly stunned young black male prisoners as "you can't steal from the white man, because everything he has is stolen from you."

RED, GREEN, BLACK AND WHITE INDIANS Sobhi al-Zobaidi, 2007, 43 sec. video Palestine
In 2007 responding to a visit by Condoleezza Rice, Palestinians demonstrated against the Israeli occupation—while dressed like a movie-set version of native Americans. Rather than draw clear analogies, the artist saw fuzziness—unclear boundaries with history and media trading places.

EL SOPAR Pere Portabella 1974 47 min. 16mm Spain
A group of seasoned militants, all of whom have been imprisoned and even subject to torture under the fascist Franco regime, meet for a clandestine dinner on the eve of the execution of a militant anarchist. Their often heated discussion across the table dramatizes the psychic costs of their unabated political commitments. Portabella uses simple cinematic means to explore his subject: "You can't understand liberation if you don't begin with yourself."

ISLE OF FLOWERS Jorge Furtado 1989 12 min video Brazil
Described by Furtado as a "letter to a Martian who knows nothing of the earth and its social systems," the film uses inventive animation and a parodic mock-lecture style of narration to link the urban bourgeois family to the rural poor who scavenge the garbage dump, the "isle of flowers," where pigs eat better than people. The truth of a society is in its detritus.

GRAVEN IMAGES Sherry Millner & Ernest Larsen, 2008, 5 min. video
A question literally and metaphorically treated as a burning issue: What is the fundamentalist relation between the Judeo-Christian prohibition against "graven images" and the iconic status of the U.S. flag? Is patriotism a religion?

ROCKIN' THE CRADLE OF DEMOCRACY Sherry Millner & Ernest Larsen (in progress) video U.S.
An engaged report (of sorts) on the aftermath of the anarchist/autonomist insurrection that hit Greece this past December and January. Shot in Thessaloniki and featuring a police attack on the recently established Micropolis, "a social space for freedom."

THE LAND BELONGS TO THOSE WHO WORK IT Chiapas Media Project 2005 15 min. video Mexico
Collectively made, this film details an elaborately polite but equally tense confrontation between masked Zapatistas farming unused land in the north of Chiapas and federal officials who have sold the same land to a private company for ecotourist development. The future of the natural resources of Chiapas is at stake.

GARBAGE U.S. Newsreel 1968 10 min. 16mm US
A radical film collective documents a collective action in defiant support of a New York City sanitation workers strike. The Lower East Side anarchist group Up Against the Wall, Motherfuckers carry their uncollected garbage on the subway up to the then new and pristine-white citadel of high culture Lincoln Center and dump it right there on the marble steps. The disjunctive soundtrack, a passionate post-dumping group critique of the action, permits us to experience the theory and practice as inseparable parts of a single process

BLACK FILM Zelimir Zilnik 1971 14 min 16mm Yugoslavia
In an attempt to "solve the homeless problem," the filmmaker invites ten homeless men (ignored by the government) into his own apartment in Novi Sad, and suffers the consequences and lives to tell the tale.

INVENTORY Zelimir Zilnik 1975 10 min 16mm Germany
A collective biographical sketch of all the guest workers (and families) living in the same building in Munich—a structural documentary realized in a single long take: Identity as social artifact.

WHAT FAROCKI TAUGHT JILL Godmilow 1997 30 min. 16mm US

A remake of Haroun Farocki's film, Inextinguishable Fire (1969), about the development of Napalm B by Dow Chemical during the Vietnam War, this time in color and in English, rather than in black and white and in German. Godmilow's passionately critical introduction and epilogue, while concentrating on conventional documentary's "pornography of the real" raises and renews the question of corporate war crimes within the U.S. context

PROTOTYPE Martha Rosler 2006 1 min. video US

A toy US soldier, playing "God Bless America" on a toy trumpet, turns out to be an amputee. The all too scrutable wages of patriots

SUPREMATIST CAPITAL James T. Hong & Yin-Ju Chen 2007 5 min US/Taiwan

"A symbolic history of Kapital—a symbolic history of the West." A speedy graphic montage: animated logo-manila, of a kind.

FIVE DOTS Tomas Ochoa & Andriana Meyer 2005 11 min. video Argentina

At a jail for juveniles in Mendoza, Argentina, the young inmates perform songs of their own composing, which are filled with longing, desire, and the thirst for escape, alternated with their recitation of quotes about disciplinary technology drawn from Foucault's Discipline and Punish. The inmates attempt to resist power tactically through their capacity to produce their own symbology.

FERAL Louis Hock 2003 5 min. video U.S.

In Southern California, not so far from the Mexican border, the imposing figure of a U.S. immigration officer in full regalia, that reads as unimpeachably sado-masochistic drag, stands in the middle of Interstate 5, checking each approaching vehicle for illegal immigrants.

SHOPLIFTING: IT'S A CRIME? Sherry Millner 1979 15 min. 16mm US

An "educational" documentary on the evils of shoplifting is itself shoplifted, mocked, and then remade or extrapolated on the Proudhonian principle that "property is theft," with the figure of the shoplifter freed from the zone of morality and re-situated as a vital part of an alternative economy. The dual aim is to shake up the disciplinary role of the educational doc as well as conventional definitions of criminality.

FACE A FACE B Rabih Mroue 2003 9 min video Lebanon

Using simple delicate means (cassette tapes and old photos), exploring gaps between memory and knowledge, physical evidence and identity, recollection and survival, the autobiographical video moves through a childhood marked by the Lebanese civil war to the present.

POW 57187 Vahid Zara Zade 2007 29 min. video Iran

An Iraqi prisoner captured during the Iran-Iraq War has lived his entire adult life on the grounds of an Iranian prison. Though officially released, he continues to decorate the prison's buildings with murals, continually changing them to fit shifting politics. With minimal supplies and great imagination, he has pieced together a museum of life-size sculptures and dioramas that reflect his experiences and those of his fellow prisoners.

MOTET FOR AMPLIFIED VOICES John Greyson 2004 5 min. video Canada

In response to an activist-student's three-year suspension for using a megaphone on campus, an impromptu 50-megaphone choir performed, juxtaposing dozens, of quotes, headlines, poems, statements.

THE ROUTE Chen Chieh-Jen 2006 14 min. video (silent) Taiwan

In stifling heat, Taiwanese dock workers break into a dock and formally, with precisely choreographed gestures, enact their part in a world-wide dockers protest that was forbidden by the Taiwanese government, in order as one of their picket signs says to "Reclaim the Future."

BELLEVILLE Vjadan Jeremic & Rena Radle 2009 20 min. video Serbia

A Roma community living in hovels in Belgrade are violently displaced—a militant protest grows in response.

Excerpts from our Statement of Principles (available in full on our website and at our table at RM):

"We make no pretense of being a political party. Nor are we trying to lead the masses, who will form their own mass organizations to transform society, and whose emancipation must be their own act. But we have seen that spontaneous actions alone are insufficient to usher in a new society. We seek a new unity of philosophy and organization in which mass movements that look for a path to freedom lay hold of Marx's philosophy of revolution and recreate society on its basis ...

"We have constituted ourselves as a new organization in order to contribute to the transformation of this world by projecting, developing and concretizing Marx's philosophy and its further development in the Marxist-Humanism articulated by Raya Dunayevskaya (1910-1987) ...

"We are distinguished from the other organizations calling themselves Marxist-Humanist in this: we have the goal of rebuilding an organization capable of renewing Marxist-Humanism by concretizing and developing it as a collectivity."

RETHINKING MARXISM

a journal of economics, culture & society

RM has become recognized as one of the premier interdisciplinary journals on the Left :: Now in its 22nd year of publication, RM provides an independent voice of left thinking :: Features include art and cultural criticism along with political analyses of current events :: RM includes symposia, which allow for in-depth looks at important theoretical issues and influential books :: RM is where you find out how Marxian theory is changing :: RM presents the best new Marxist thinking from generations of writers around the world ::

The aim of RETHINKING MARXISM is to stimulate interest in and debate over the explanatory power and social consequences of Marxian economic, cultural, and social analysis. To that end, we publish studies that seek to discuss, elaborate, and/or extend Marxian theory. Our concerns include theoretical and philosophical (methodological and epistemological) matters as well as more concrete empirical analyses--all work that leads to the further development of distinctively Marxian discourses. We encourage contributions from people in many disciplines and from a wide range of perspectives. We are also interested in expanding the diversity of styles for producing and presenting Marxian discourses.

One distinguishing aim of this journal is to ensure that class is an important part, but not the exclusive focus, of Marxism. We are therefore interested in the complex intersection of class with economic, political, psychological, and all other social processes. Equally important is the task of exploring the philosophical positions that shape Marxian analyses.

We are interested in promoting Marxian approaches to social theory because we believe that they can and should play an important role in developing strategies for radical social change--in particular, for an end to class exploitation and the various forms of political, cultural, and psychological oppression (including oppression on the basis of race, gender, and sexual orientation). We especially welcome research that explores these and related issues from Marxian perspectives.
